Housing Finance Agency

Housing in Minnesota will face tough times in the next few years, says Jim Solem, Housing Finance Agency (HFA) director.

He told the State Departments Division of the Appropriations Committee Feb. 26 that availability of rental housing will suffer most from new federal limits on state tax breaks for rental developers, and the governor's $5 million reduction in HFA funding. Affordable rental housing will be scarce, says Solem.

HFA has proposed a budget that eliminates urban Indian housing programs, and cuts other loan programs by 66 percent. But the department is asking increased funding for elderly home sharing and renovation of run-down rental units.

Department of Human Rights

Mismanagement problems in the Department of Human Rights that made news some months ago are over, according to a report from the governor's Human Rights Advisory Task Force. The governor set up the task force last year to investigate alleged human rights violations and reports of mismanagement.

On Feb. 25, task force members reported at a joint meeting of the Government Structures Subcommittee of the Governmental Operations Committee and the State Departments Division of the Appropriations Committee. The task force says the department is competently and effectively enforcing the Minnesota Human Rights Act.

The panel says the department should remain separate from the Attorney General's Office, and should continue to spend its time enforcing human rights laws and educating the public.

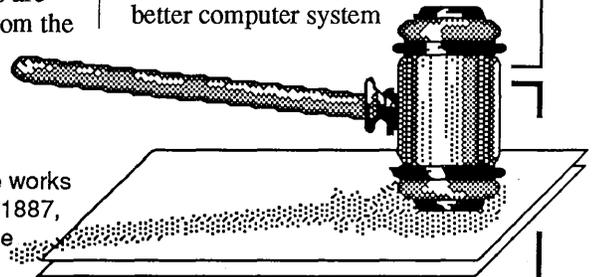

On Feb. 26, Jayne Khalifa, Department of Human Rights acting director, presented the department's 1988-89 budget proposal to the State Departments Division. She says the department needs four new employees and a better computer system

It's a fact!

The Minnesota Legislature works through committees. And in 1887, with 103 members, the House had 34 standing, 8 special, and 2 joint (House and Senate) committees--one of which was the five-member University and University Lands Committee.

The University graduated its first class of two members in 1873, and by 1887, had conferred 243 Bachelor's degrees in arts, science, literature, engineering, architecture, and medicine.

The committee was instrumental in passing "encouragement of higher education" legislation, giving Minnesota what no other state had--an organized system of free education from the A B Cs to a college degree. For more, see "Do You Know" (back page).

to aid in "administering and enforcing the Minnesota Human Rights Act that prohibits discrimination in housing, employment, public accommodations, public services, education, and credit on the basis of age, race, color, creed, religion, national origin, sex, marital status, public assistance status, and familial status." She says 80 percent of the department's cases involve alleged discrimination in employment.

Winona State

Winona State University could get a new one-of-a-kind engineering program under HF114 (Pelowski-DFL, Winona), a bill the Higher Education Committee recommended to pass Feb. 25. It would establish a composite science and engineering program for undergraduate students.

Rep. Gene Pelowski says Winona is the best location for the program that would compliment local industries currently using resin-fiber composites. Products containing the materials range from airplanes and canoes to the Jarvik-7 artificial heart.

If the bill passes, Winona State would be the only U.S. institution educating undergraduate students for careers in the rapidly growing composite industry.

Mail-in ballots

Minnesota voters could soon find county or municipal election ballots in their mail boxes.

General Legislation, Veterans Affairs and Gaming Committee members gave unanimous approval Feb. 26 to HF281 (Steensma, DFL-Luverne) authorizing experimental mail elections.

The bill would give county and municipal governments a low-cost option that could increase voter turnout on special-issue elections, according to Rep. Andy Steensma. Officials could issue mail-in ballots only for special elections local governments hold on days other than the general election day and don't include candidates for office.

The bill would require a two-year test and review period for the mail-in ballots.

State universities

St. Cloud State President Brendan McDonald says recent enrollment growth at Minnesota institutions is a good sign.

"It suggests that more of Minnesota's young people are investing in themselves and in Minnesota's future," McDonald told members of the Education Division of the Appropriations Committee.

More than 3,100 new students enrolled in the seven state universities since 1985. Although that's good news, system presidents say it hurts the growing schools that come under the state's average cost funding, a system that bases state appropriations on enrollment figures from two years before.

System Chancellor Dr. Robert Carothers told legislators that this funding system works well for shrinking enrollment, but leaves growing schools with unfunded students for two years. He says systems aren't ready to absorb costs that come with large enrollment increases.

"We're forced to reallocate resources within the system to respond to those needs" he says. "What that frequently means is that we fund those sections of new students by not buying books for the library, not buying equipment, and not doing other things that we need to do to maintain the quality of the institution."

Carothers says that funding lag is a consistent problem. He told legislators the state could meet student needs better if the system more closely tied funding for enrollment increases to current enrollment levels.

The committee looked at State University System budget requests Feb. 24.

Home health care licensure

People who provide home health care in the state may need a license to continue that service, under a bill the Health and Human Services' Social Services Subcommittee approved Feb. 24.

HF120 (Greenfield, DFL-Mpls), according to its author, would protect the elderly from abuse and ensure quality home health care for those who need it.

Supporters voiced concern over adult abuse cases in the home health care field. They say the bill would protect elderly and vulnerable adults from abusive care providers who are unqualified for their jobs.

Spokespersons from Minnesota's Senior Federation (MSF) say the state's elderly population is mushrooming, and abuse cases are increasing. They say adoption of mandatory licensing would be a "giant step forward" in protecting the rights of those who need home health care.

Karina Allen of MSF told committee members that rural Minnesotans--especially the elderly--need the same quality home health care as the rest of the state. She says, "I resent the idea that rural people should not demand standards as high as people in urban areas. They should not be forced to accept an untrained person for a position that requires expertise."

Under the bill, hospice care providers would also need licenses to continue their service to terminally ill patients in a home setting.

Child support withholding

A bill proposing immediate income withholding moved a step further in the legislative process Feb. 24 when the Judiciary Committee recommended it to pass.

The committee amended HF163 (Schoenfeld, DFL-Waseca) to give counties the option to begin court-ordered withholding for all child support or maintenance orders courts initiate or modify after Aug. 1, 1987.

Supporters say requiring immediate withholding would make it more likely that children would receive support in a timely and regular manner. Opponents say it presumes the parent is irresponsible and won't pay.

The committee amended another of the bill's provisions to allow the court to divide the responsibility for a child's non-insured medical and dental expenses between parents according to each parent's ability to pay.

The bill goes next to the Health and Human Services Committee.

Credit card surcharges

A bill that would ban credit card surcharges moved out of the Commerce Committee Feb. 24.

Minnesota retailers who charge an extra fee to credit card users could go to jail for up to 90 days and/or pay a $700 fine under HF240.

The bill, which Rep. John Sarna (DFL-Mpls) sponsors, has AFL-CIO support. Tobey Lapakko, spokesperson for the organization, says 10 other states have similar legislation on their books and it's time for Minnesota to join with them.

Rep. Tony Bennett (IR-Shoreview) and Rep. K.J. McDonald (IR-Watertown) oppose the bill. "We need to look a little deeper into this. It's another restriction on our local merchants on our local streets that may help another major corporation such as American Express that does their business outside...Minnesota," Bennett says.

HF240 would not take away retailers rights to offer discounts for cash and the bill doesn't cover Master or Visa cards or any credit cards that originate in other states, according to Lapakko.

Mystery Cave

With a little help from the state, Rep. Elton Redalen hopes to give people a chance to explore Mystery Cave, near Spring Valley in southeastern Minnesota.

HF398 (Redalen, IR-Fountain) proposes that the Department of Natural Resources buy Mystery Cave to safeguard the cave's natural and educational value. The cave's present owner closed it and moved out of Minnesota.

Redalen told the Environment and Natural Resources Committee Feb. 24, that southeastern Minnesota needs some attraction to bring people into an area that can no longer support itself on agriculture alone. Adding Mystery Cave to Forestville State Park could make the park as attractive to tourists as many other Minnesota state parks, he says.

The committee approved the bill and sent it on to the full House.

Farm Advocate Program

When Lou Ann Kling helped a neighboring farmer restructure an old debt with the Farmers Home Administration five years ago, she never thought her efforts would lead to the Minnesota Farm Advocate Program.

Kling, a southwestern Minnesota farmer, is one of 25 farm advocates in the state. Her one-on-one sessions with farmers gave birth to the Department of Agriculture's Farm Advocate Program in 1984.

Under the program, the department contracts with trained advocates, generally farmers themselves, to help other farmers facing foreclosure. Advocates get $5 to $6 an hour for 20 hours a week, but Kling says they actually work around the clock to get farmers ready for mediation. "The calls may start at 5:30 a.m. and continue past midnight," she says.

Anne Kanten, assistant commissioner of agriculture, says the advocate program has helped approximately 10,230 farmers to date. She says the current client load for advocates is 803 farmers, each carrying an average of 36 active files. She says a department survey shows that 30 percent of the state's farmers could use the program in upcoming years.

The department, Kanten added, has submitted a change-level request to raise advocates' salaries to $8 an hour and transfer the program to the AVTI system.

Kling and Kanten reported to the Agriculture Committee Feb. 23.

Labor-management bills

The Labor-Management Relations Committee Feb. 23 recommended passage of HF52 (Ogren, DFL-Aitkin), a bill that would require ski resorts to pay overtime wages to seasonal workers who work more than 48 hours in a week. Opponents of the bill argue that ski resort workers shouldn't get overtime pay because they don't work year-round. Under the proposal, the law that lets state fair workers earn overtime pay would also cover ski resort workers.

The committee also recommended for passage a measure that would give privately contracted food service workers at some state universities the option to get state employee life and health insurance. According to Bob Johnson (DFL-Bemidji), author of HF119, the workers had state employee insurance coverage until the state reclassified them as privately contracted workers in 1977. To compensate for reclassification, Johnson says the workers should have an option to buy the employee insurance. Opponents say the state should not allow private employees to contract with the state for insurance.

The committee also supported HF134 (Price, DFL-Woodbury), a bill that would require employers to notify employees and job applicants if they file for bankruptcy or if someone files petition for involuntary bankruptcy against them. On a voice vote, the committee unanimously recommended the bill to pass.

Unemployment insurance

How do you file for unemployment insurance?

Terrence Clark, Department of Jobs and Training, explained the process to the Unemployment Insurance and Workers' Compensation Division of the Labor-Management Relations Committee Feb. 23.

To be eligible for benefits, says Clark, workers must be unemployed through no fault of their own, and have earned at least $108.00 a week for 15 work weeks prior to their unemployment. "Eligible unemployed people receive unemployment benefit payments to stabilize their income and free them to look for work on a full-time basis," he says.

Minnesota offers the highest benefits of any state for unemployed workers. An average weekly payment is $158.77, Clark says. Employers maintain Minnesota's unemployment insurance fund through payroll taxes.

Chair Rep. Mary Murphy (DFL, Hermantown) says the division will look at ways to lower unemployment insurance costs and reduce the number of workers who get benefits they don't deserve. Clark says most fraudulent cases involve an employer who pays cash wages to a worker receiving unemployment benefits, and neither the employer nor the worker report the wages on tax forms.

Clark says that last year, unemployment insurance fraud investigators uncovered a total of 2,248 fraudulent claims amounting to over a million dollars. The department recovered nearly $750,000 of that amount.

New gas pipeline

Some natural gas consumers may save money on their gas bills if the state gets a proposed new pipeline.

The Regulated Industries Committee approved a bill Feb. 23 that would give Minnesota's Public Utilities Commission the right to approve plans for a new gas pipeline between Cambridge and Coon Rapids. Supporters of HF420 (Jacobs, DFL-Coon Rapids) say it would provide metro-area consumers with cheaper Canadian natural gas.

Under the bill, Rep. Joel Jacobs says, the Minnesota Public Utilities Commission would have regulating authority for the proposed pipeline. Supporters say the pipeline is strictly an intrastate venture, and it could get underway faster if the state rather than the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) approved the project. They say FERC would take over the project if the state didn't take action.

Gary Peterson, a Minnesgasco spokesperson, told lawmakers that the cheaper gas would save their customers between $4 and $8 million.

Adopted child's death

The Department of Human Services has a little-known rule that requires adoption agencies to notify birth parents of their child's death. Rep. Kathleen Vellenga wants to make this rule a law, and add a little flexibility in the process.

Adoption agencies would have to let birth parents know when an adopted child dies, if birth parents ask for that notification. On the other hand, birth parents could designate someone to notify the adoption agency if they should die.

Cheryl Hall, representing Liberal Education for Adoptive Families in Minnesota (LEAF), testified in favor of HF270 (Vellenga, DFL-St. Paul), which would put the Department of Human Services rule into law.

Hall says, "It would be less than humane to put people in the situation...where you spend a great number of years believing that you'll be reunited with the child you place for adoption. Or, as an adoptee, you spend that time believing that you'll be reunited with a parent from (whom) you're separated, only to find out that parent has been dead a...number of years. And that is known to an agency but not to you."

Hall spoke at a Feb. 23 Crime and Family Law Division hearing where members approved the proposal. It now goes to the full Judiciary Committee.

Cigarette tax

If the cigarette tax goes up, some college and vocational students could be thanking smokers for better classrooms and libraries.

On Feb. 23, members of the Education Division of the Appropriations Committee looked at the governor's plan to fund capital improvements on state campuses with money from an increase in the state cigarette tax.

The plan would boost the tax six cents a pack. That could raise 75 percent of the funds the governor has asked for to expand facilities on several campuses.

A large part of the estimated $48 million in cigarette tax receipts would pay for expansion of library facilities at Mankato, St. Cloud, and Bemidji State universities. Funds would also go to establish child care services at AVTIs and community colleges.

But some lawmakers worry about the plan. They say the state is banking on money it may never collect because the Legislature hasn't approved the tax increase.

Biotechnology future

On the threshold of a biotechnology revolution, Minnesota needs to embrace developing technology to position itself as a world leader, according to authorities in the field.

Experts from the Minnesota Council on Biotechnology and members of the state's education community spoke in support of biotechnology at a Future and Technology Biotechnology Subcommittee meeting Feb. 23. They say Minnesota is in a good position to make biotechnology a future core industry.

A. Richard Baldwin, chairperson of the Minnesota Council on Biotechnology, compared the industry to the computer industry in the late 1930s and early 1940s. He says that even though research in the field is new, biotechnology could impact society more than computers did.

Members of the education community advise a greater emphasis on education now. They say when school age children reach adulthood, they will need skills and tools to carry the "biological revolution" into its next phase. Educators say we are now in a pioneering phase, and that technology is moving faster than anyone expected three or four years ago.

Dr. Stephen Weber, vice president for academic affairs, St. Cloud State University, agrees. He says the state must provide more education opportunities to keep pace.

"The revolution is moving so quickly that if we're not careful, it will outstrip the educational infrastructure which is committed to perpetuating this revolution and to assisting it with the next generation of students," says Weber.

Estimates from experts say the biotechnology industry will create 52,000 jobs by the year 2000.

State budget forecasting

Estimating state revenues is a tough job, and it's getting tougher, says Jay Kiedrowski, commissioner of finance.

At a meeting of the Taxes Committee, Feb. 20, Kiedrowski said constantly changing tax laws cause the most problems for budget forecasting. And this year, he says he can't imagine a more difficult time to try to estimate state revenues because of changes in the state's tax system. Tax law changes, according to Kiedrowski, account for 20 percent of forecast errors.

Kiedrowski says the state's biennial budget approach is generally a good forecasting structure. But, he says, some pieces of it need an annual review because factors like inflation, property tax relief, and school spending vary from year to year.

Rental housing

Changes in federal tax laws will create a shortage of low- and moderate-income housing and increase the number of homeless in Minnesota, says Jerrold Boardman, director of the Bloomington Housing and Redevelopment Authority. He spoke before the Housing and Community Development Subcommittee of the Economic Development and Housing Committee Feb. 19.

"The budget for Housing and Urban Development has been cut dramatically since 1980. And with tax changes, it will also become more difficult for the private sector to provide decent, safe, and affordable housing," says Boardman.

He says private developers need at least $750 per month for a two-bedroom unit in the metropolitan area. In the past, developers could charge $500 a month because tax shelters protected them from losses. Renters assistance programs reduced rent further so that one could pay $176 a month for a $750 a month unit. Essentially, the federal government was paying over 60 percent of the rent for some low-income renters.

Cutbacks in federal funds mean many renters won't be able to afford housing, says Boardman.

Rural Development

Subcommittee of the Economic Development and Housing Committee continued review of HF2 (Schoenfeld, DFL-Waseca) Feb. 24. The bill would restructure the Department of Energy and Economic Development and establish the Greater Minnesota Corporation. The subcommittee is also holding public forums to get citizen views on rural development programs at: Thief River Falls, City Auditorium, Feb. 27, 10-11:30 a.m.; Willmar, Kandiyohi Entertainment Center, Feb. 27, 2:30-4 p.m.; Morris, Sunwood Inn, Feb. 28, 9:30-11 a.m.; Jackson, AVTI, Feb. 28, 2-3:30 p.m.

Museum programs would go out to greater Minnesota under a school services program the St. Paul Science Museum hopes to have. The Science Museum wants a $130,000 budget increase in 1988-89 "for a new school services program that will not only bring Minnesota students from rural areas to the museum, but will also bring the museum's programs throughout the state," says museum president Dr. James Peterson. The Agriculture, Transportation and Semi-State Division of the Appropriations Committee toured St. Paul Science Museum and Omni Theater Feb. 24.

Air traffic control towers, Metropolitan Airport Commission offices, and equipment and airplane maintenance garages had a visit from Metropolitan Affairs Committee members. The legislators toured Wold-Chamberlain (Twin Cities) International Airport Feb. 20.

Emergency phone service 9-1-1 serves nearly 90 percent of Minnesotans. And the Department of Administration is in the process of hooking up the other 10 percent, Babak Armajani, deputy commissioner, told the State Departments Division of the Appropriations Committee at budget hearings Feb. 23-24. At same meeting, Minnesota Public Television Association and the Association of Minnesota Public Educational Radio Stations presented budget requests including $1,200,000 increase in 1988-89 for matching grants and broadcasting equipment.

Minnesota schools that dropped the milk-in-schools program because of federal budget cuts could again offer milk to students under HF153 (Krueger, DFL-Staples), a bill the Agriculture Committee recommended to pass Feb. 24. It requires all schools to provide one-half pint of milk a day to students in K-12 and appropriate $10 million to the Department of Education to reimburse schools. HF153 goes next to the Education Committee.

St. Paul homeowners who sell homes dating back before 1973, may have to install hard-wire smoke detectors before putting their houses on the market. On Feb. 24, the Local and Urban Affairs Committee recommended to pass HF357 (Orenstein, DFL-St. Paul), a bill that would let St. Paul's City Council move ahead with plans to require the detectors. Bill's author says state law currently requires hard-wire smoke detectors in homes people built since 1973. He says the council wants to go a step further because about 53,000 St. Paul homes went up before 1973.

Minnesota could get over $5 million in revenue if it captures five percent of the more than $100 billion national software industry, says Rosemary Fruehling, director of the Office of Software Technology Development. She presented her office's plans to expand Minnesota's software industry at the Feb. 25 meeting of the Future and Technology Software Subcommittee. Fruehling says Minnesota now has 2.7 percent of the national market.

About 13,000 Minnesotans work in the state's software industry, up from 2,500 10 years ago. Between 1976 and 1984, the state's software industry was the fifth largest creator of jobs, according to statistics from the Department of Energy and Economic Development.

Legislators heard firsthand about effects of AT&T divestiture on Northwestern Bell (NWB) when the Regulated Industries Committee toured NWB's St. Paul plant this week.

Local Liquor licensing, nonalcoholic advertising, rare wine auctions, and cased liquor pricing issues were on the agenda when Regulated Industries Beverage Subcommittee met for the first time Feb. 24.

Proposals that affect taxes on aircraft, petroleum, deeds and mortgages, pulltabs, gross earnings, cigarettes, liquor, and lodging are in the governor's miscellaneous tax bill, HF528 (Voss, DFL-Blaine). John Haynes, assistant revenue commissioner, spoke for the bill at the Taxes Committee Feb. 26.

Members of the Taxes Committee Tax Laws Division heard a presentation on the state's corporate tax structure

Feb. 24, from John James, state assistance commissioner, Compliance Tax Program.

Minnesota counties oppose mental health care fund consolidation, says Dorothy Grotte, president of the Association of Minnesota Counties. The proposal would "straightjacket" counties and dictate what they can offer the mentally ill, Grotte told the Health and Human Services Division of the Appropriations Committee Feb. 25.

The money lag in average cost funding (ACF) is causing problems, the Education Division of Appropriations Committee heard Feb. 24. ACF dollars follow students on the basis of two-year-old enrollment figures, educators say. Some said they'd like more immediate funding for new students, but something of a safety net lag against possible enrollment decline.

Deer hunters may have a shot at keeping the two-deer hunting rule if a proposal the Environment and Natural Resources Committee heard Feb. 26 becomes law. An experimental program in current law allows hunters in certain areas of the state to take two deer in the 1986 and '87 hunting seasons. The committee approved HF400 (D. Nelson, DFL-Champlin) which would make the program permanent. Hunters who want to take advantage of it would purchase an additional license at a cost of about $16.

Current active members of the Public Employees Retirement Association (PERA) would become immediately vested under a bill Rep. Wayne Simoneau (DFL-Fridley) presented to the Governmental Operations Committee Feb. 26. HF463 would decrease from 10 to 5, the number of years an employee must work to become vested in PERA. The association has 25,000 active members, 16,000 are women.

Do You Know

In 1887, the University of Minnesota became an integral part of the state system of public instruction--in some sense, the head of the system. If you inquired about costs to attend, you'd get information something like this:

"The University has no dormitories. Students live chiefly in families in and about the city. They also form clubs. Prices for board are: in families, $4 to $6; in clubs, $2 to $3. Self-boarding is a little cheaper. A large number of students gain their whole support by their work while at the University.

"Average expenses are: for boarding in families, $300; boarding in clubs, $225. This includes board, washing, fuel, lights, books and stationery, literary society, travel, clothing, and miscellaneous.

"The eastern terminus of the street railway is one block from the main entrance at University Avenue and 14th Avenue S.E. Fare is 5 cents.

"Direct all general correspondence to the president of the University, Minneapolis, Minn."
