It's a fact!

Statues surrounding the State Capitol honor political figures, soldiers, explorers, and Minnesota's youth.

One statue, "Monument to the Living," uniquely honors living veterans of all wars. Its sculptor, Roger Brodin, suggested the idea of honoring living veterans, since many sculptures pay tribute to those who died.

"The Promise of Youth," near the Veterans Service Building, was a controversial addition to the Capitol area. The fountain sculpture, a metal water lily, opens to reveal the figure of a woman looking toward the sky. Some people protested the figure's nudity. The sculptor removed the figure for a time, until the controversy died down. The figure's back in place now. And because the sculpture is a water fountain, the lily opens in summer and closes in winter. (See Do You Know? on page 17.)

Revenue forecast

What's likely to happen over the next 28 months to Minnesota's economy? Slower but positive growth through the next biennium, according to state economists and the Department of Finance.

Finance department officials appeared before the Taxes Committee March 30 to discuss the governor's budget and an increase in revenue from state taxes. Finance Commissioner Tom Triplett projects a net increase of $219.9 million in available resources—a 1.3 percent increase over last November's forecast.

Four major revenue sources make up the bulk of tax revenue, totaling $229.5 million: individual income taxes (the largest revenue), sales taxes, corporate/bank excise taxes, and motor vehicle excise taxes.

To quickly figure the budget, add $50.4 million to the $229.5 million in other resources (debt service savings, fee incomes); subtract the variance from November and December the governor included in the January budget ($35.7 million); and subtract expenditure increases, which is $24.3 million higher than the November forecast, for an available amount of $219.9 million.

"This forecast does not assume a recession," Triplett told committee members. "What it's saying is continued economic growth, but at a substantially slower rate than we've been seeing in this country and in this state over the past two years. We're confident in this projection. But...we want you to know that the risk of a recession is growing at the same time."

Highlights

Drug Abuse

Minnesota needs a coordinated effort to prevent drug abuse, according to proponents of HF621 (Kelly, DFL-St. Paul), a bill the Governmental Operations Committee gave preliminary approval March 30. It would create a drug abuse prevention resource council to coordinate community efforts to prevent drug abuse.

Stephen Winfield, a board member of the David M. Winfield Foundation, says that Minnesota's drug problems aren't as bad as that of some states. But if the state doesn't enhance its efforts to prevent drug abuse, the problems could get much worse. "If we don't deal with coordinating the resources that we have in...Minnesota now...we're going to definitely pay later," says Winfield. He and his brother, the foundation's namesake and a New York Yankee outfielder, are Minnesotans who have worked nationally to coordinate efforts to prevent drug abuse.

Rep. Bob Johnson (DFL-Bemidji) says he strongly supports a coordinated effort to deal with the problem. Johnson told the committee that prevention is more than just school curriculum—it's totally encompassing. He says "the community should be the engine that drives the train" against drug abuse.

Compulsive gambling

Gambling may be addictive and deserves state attention, proponents of a compulsive gambling bill told the Gaming Division of the General Legislation, Veterans Affairs and Gaming Committee March 30.

HF236 (Jaros, DFL-Duluth) would direct the Department of Human Services to set up a treatment program for compulsive gamblers. The department could work with nonprofit agencies with expertise in treating compulsive gambling in operating the program.

"We're getting all this revenue from gambling so I think we have to be aware that there are casualties out there," says Rep. Gil Gutknecht (IR-Rochester), who sponsors a similar measure, and agreed to support Jaros' bill.

Steve Dentinger, president of the Minnesota Council on Compulsive Gambling, calls compulsive gambling "a pure addiction. It's an ingestion of a high that's self-created. They're addicted to the action; the high of being in action. A gambler can continue sustaining that high as long as he's in action."

Roger Franke, executive secretary of the Charitable Gambling Control Board, listens as groups testify against changes in the rate and computation of charitable gambling taxes. The Tax Laws Subcommittee met March 28.

Scott Rudniger of Sunberg, Minnesota, sports a Las Vegas T-shirt while attending a hearing on compulsive gambling in the Gaming Division of the General Legislation, Veterans Affairs and Gaming Committee March 30.

Battered Women

Approximately 63,000 women in Minnesota are battered each year, according to statistics the Department of Corrections gathered, says Pat Murphy from the Minnesota Coalition for Battered Women.

Shelters throughout the state annually turn down more than 50 percent of the requests for their services, according to Murphy, and in the metro area, the figure is higher. She also notes that 61 of Minnesota's 87 counties have no services for battered women. "We're looking for some support for legal systems, welfare systems, housing systems, advocacy, public awareness, and looking at issues that are important to children..." Murphy says.

She urged the Appropriations Health and Human Services Division March 29 to support the coalition's request for a $14.5 million budget increase for the next biennium, along with a yearly inflation adjustment for current battered women's programs. Murphy says $10 million would go toward statewide services such as a telephone network, access to advocacy services, housing, transportation to a shelter or safehouse, and translator services for bilingual and disabled women.

Good Thunder

Good Thunder, a southern Minnesota township, got an unexpected economic boost from the efforts of the Minnesota Regional Arts Council.

The township developed a new tourism economy by way of an arts project the council facilitated, says Ann Christenson from the Good Thunder Development Corporation.

Ta-Coumba Aiken, Minnesota's leading mural artist, painted a historical montage on Good Thunder's grain elevator. It features a portrait of Good Thunder, a Dakota Chief, and other historical and contemporary scenes of the town. The project generated media attention and a tourism industry, according to Christenson.

"People are measured by their arts, not by their wars. We're not all going to be mathematicians, by the same token, we're not all going to be artists. But math and art are integral to a culture," says Christenson.

Regional arts council members urged the Agriculture, Transportation and Semi-State Division of the Appropriations Committee March 29 to approve its budget request.

Spring must be here. Rep. Joe Quinn (DFL-Coon Rapids) steps out onto a House Retiring Room balcony to talk with researcher John Williams.

Wage protection

Workers who lose wages because their companies leave Minnesota, file bankruptcy, or are subject to corporate takeover, could seek payment under a bill the Labor-Management Relations Committee approved March 29.

HF970 would set up a fund in the Department of Labor and Industry (DLI) to assure payment of lost wages. The maximum payment would be four weeks' pay or $2,000, whichever is less.

"People call us about their checks not being good and we find that their employer's skipped out of state or filed bankruptcy," says Dan Gustufson, representing the Minnesota AFL-CIO.

Employees would first try to collect from the company, says bill author Rep. John Sarna (DFL-Mpls). If that fails, the state could pay the employee, then try to recover the payment from the company.

The bill would also entitle the commissioner of labor and industry to collect attorney's fees and a penalty of 25 percent of the recovery. If the state recovers money after paying the employee, the DLI would deposit it in the wage protection fund.

Manufactured home parks

Residents of manufactured home parks and members of the All Parks Alliance for Change (APAC) crowded into a hearing room March 29 to listen to testimony on a bill that could make it easier for mobile home owners to form a cooperative and buy a mobile home park.

Bill author Rep. Alice Johnson (DFL-Spring Lake Park) has two mobile home parks in her district. She drafted HF88, a bill that would help mobile home owners purchase their park when it goes up for sale.

Under the bill, mobile home park owners would have to notify park residents at least 60 days prior to executing an agreement to sell the park. The 60-day period gives residents the opportunity to form a cooperative and buy the park, according to Johnson. A "good faith" provision in the bill would require park owners to consider a cooperative offer from a majority of park residents.

Manufactured home parks give people of low-to-moderate income a place to live in homes acceptable to them, Johnson says. And they provide low-cost housing—a tool needed to ease the overall housing problem for individuals and families.

The Housing Division of the Financial Institutions and Housing Committee plans to continue hearing the bill next week.

Animals as prizes

If a proposed bill gets final approval, commercial ventures could no longer give animals as prizes or inducements to enter a game, place of amusement, or business agreement if the offer of the animal is part of the venture.

HF1121 aims to stop fairs, carnivals, and circuses from giving away rabbits, chicks, ducklings, and goslings, according to author Rep. Marvin Dauner (DFL-Hawley). Often, he says, people who win animals as prizes end up not caring for them. The American Humane Association estimates that 9 of 10 animals given away as prizes are either abandoned or fatally hurt.

The bill would not affect enterprises that give animals as a prize, inducement, or incentive to promote the equine and livestock industries, or to promote animal and wildlife conservation in Minnesota. Also, Dauner says he doesn't want to prohibit nonprofit groups, such as county 4-H organizations, from giving away animals. He says people who win these animals usually care for them.

The General Legislation, Veterans Affairs and Gaming Committee heard the bill March 28.

Five-year-old Mike Chosa of Minneapolis rests at the Capitol with his message in hand. On March 29, the Minneapolis Inhalant Abuse Task Force talked with legislators urging support for a bill that would establish an inhalant abuse demonstration project. Four Minnesotans died last year after "sniffing" inhalants. Children between the ages of six and 12 are at high risk for abusing such chemicals because they're legal and easily obtained. A health and human services subcommittee gave the bill its first hearing March 30.

Juveniles: DWI, jail

Some juveniles whom the courts find guilty of drunken driving would face jail time under HF1016, a bill the Judiciary Committee's Criminal Justice Division approved March 29.

Author Rep. Connie Morrison (IR-Burnsville) says the state should give adult courts the authority to put habitual juvenile offenders on probation, and if they violate probation, in jail. The bill would also extend the court's authority to some juveniles whom law enforcement officials find possessing small amounts of marijuana, or those who violate local ordinances, such as curfew.

Proponents of the bill say a similar law in Oregon led to a significant drop in driving-while-intoxicated (DWI) and drug offenses. They say the threat of losing their licenses and possibly going to jail gives kids reasons to say "no" to drugs and alcohol.

But Rep. Sandy Pappas (DFL-St. Paul) reminded lawmakers that county jails are already overcrowded. She says the state should try more creative alternatives to incarceration, such as mandatory work programs, before putting a juvenile in jail.

Women's economic initiatives

"The Women's Economic Development Corporation (WEDCO) has one of the most distinguished records for economic development of any organization, not only in Minnesota but in the nation," says Rep. Gene Pelowski, Jr. (DFL-Winona).

The Economic Development Committee heard a bill to provide state funding to WEDCO and the Minnesota Cooperative Office (MCO) March 28. Both organizations provide technical assistance, educational services, and financing to new business entrepreneurs.

The WEDCO has helped 3,700 women start businesses, and has assisted 110 women obtain financing for their businesses, Pelowski says. The MCO provides a network of information and advisory services to its clients. It maintains contacts with the business, academic, and financial communities. Pelowski reports that the MCO helped start 28 new high growth companies which created 828 jobs as of last September.

Private sector funding for these two groups has dwindled, Pelowski says, so that they can't continue their economic development activities. State funding would help the organizations continue their efforts and work towards self-sufficiency.

Housing impact statement

A bill that would help offset the significant loss of low-income housing came before the Housing Division of the Financial Institutions and Housing Committee March 29. The goal of HF241 is to preserve low-income housing, says author Rep. Karen Clark (DFL-Mpls).

She says the bill would assure that adequate housing exists for displaced individuals and families, and would help alleviate Minnesota's homeless situation.

It would require local communities to prepare a housing impact statement when they displace at least five housing units in one year. The community would have to provide sufficient replacement housing within 36 months after demolishing, converting, or acquiring the original housing.

Special diet I.D. card

People on special diets may soon be able to bring their own food and beverages into public facilities, if a bill the Legislature is considering becomes law.

HF1116 (Swenson, IR-Forest Lake) would allow those who require special diets to carry special identification cards from the commissioner of health. The cards would exempt them from certain prohibitions on outside food and drinks. The exemption would apply to facilities such as auditoriums, concert halls, sports stadiums and arenas, and theaters.

The commissioner would make the cards available to physicians, who would issue them automatically to diabetics, and would have the option to issue them to those with other conditions requiring special diets. The cards would be valid for five years after the application date.

The bill would also give public facilities authority to limit the amount of food and drink that cardholders may bring into the facility, and would authorize them to ask cardholders for another form of identification.

The Health and Human Services Committee gave the bill unanimous preliminary approval March 28.

Finance Commissioner Tom Triplett stood behind a chart showing the March revenue adjustments as he listened to an explanation of the new revenue forecast during a news conference at the Capitol March 28.

Restraint of trade

Retailers who feel manufacturers and competitors are squeezing them out of pricing competition would have a legal remedy against such tactics if a bill the Commerce Committee considered March 28 becomes law.

HF511 would "make it tougher for wholesalers and retailers to price-fix," says author Rep. Rich O'Connor (DFL-St. Paul). The bill would allow retailers to sue if they believe manufacturers cancelled contracts because they listened to competitors' complaints about unfair pricing.

Proving price fixing is difficult, O'Connor says, because nothing is written. However, the bill would allow the courts to consider communication from a competitor to the manufacturer in restraint-of-trade suits. If a retailer files a lawsuit, the manufacturer would have a chance to rebut the charge.

Opponents say the measure would shift the burden of proof from the plaintiff to the defendant. Also, they say, retailers could capriciously use the proposal to harass manufacturers. "This bill turns anti-trust law on its head," says Richard Silverman, a Chicago attorney representing several electronic companies.

The committee gave the bill preliminary approval.

Dangerous dogs

A bill that would clarify state regulations governing dangerous dogs got a recommendation to pass from the General Legislation, Veterans Affairs and Gaming Committee March 28.

HF543 (Scheid, DFL-Brooklyn Park) would define a proper enclosure for housing dangerous dogs. Under the bill, porches, patios, or buildings that a dog could leave of its own will would not be acceptable. Neither would buildings with open windows or in which door or window screens are the only obstacles that contain the dog. The bill would also require owners to attach identifying tags to the collars of all dogs registered as dangerous.

The bill would exempt dogs that are provoked into attacking an individual, such as someone who is trespassing or in the process of committing a crime, or who has repeatedly provoked, tormented, abused, or assaulted the animal.

A provision would also prohibit local governments from singling out specific breeds as dangerous or potentially dangerous. A Hennepin County judge recently declared unconstitutional a Minneapolis ordinance that regulated ownership of certain breeds of dogs, mostly pit bulls.

State Auditor Arne Carlson spoke to the Governmental Operations Committee March 28.

Financial disclosure

State Auditor Arne Carlson says some local government officials should have to make their financial interests open to the public to avoid a conflict of interest.

Carlson told the Governmental Operations Committee March 28 that these local officials should face the same financial scrutiny that state representatives and constitutional officers do. "When you hold a position of public trust," he says, "you have the same obligation as legislators do, as constitutional officers do, to disclose your own private, personal holdings to avoid a conflict of interest."

Carlson's proposal would also set uniform standards for reimbursing local government employees for mileage and expenses. He says local governments that fail to comply with the policy would lose state aid.

The committee expects to hear Carlson's proposal in the form of a bill later this session.

Bottom of the well

You'd be surprised to find what turns up in wells, says Ray Renner, a specialist in well construction. He testified March 28 before the Environment and Natural Resources Committee about wells in Minnesota in connection with HF534 (Munger, DFL-Duluth), the comprehensive groundwater protection bill.

E. H. Renner & Sons, Inc., a well construction company, uses video technology to view the condition of wells before entering them. Renner showed the committee a videotape of various wells his company has inspected.

Renner says they've seen newspapers, piles of grain, and abandoned well appliances at the bottom of some wells. A Minneapolis well had 30 feet of coffee grounds at the bottom. He points out that rust and bacteria can grow on these things. "It's easy to see why damaged or polluted wells need to be repaired or sealed," he says.

Many of the aquifers (underground lakes) that wells draw from have downdrafts that enter another aquifer, according to Renner. Downdrafts will carry pollutants from one aquifer into another. And, he notes, many counties and cities rely on common aquifers for their water supply.

Notes

Organizations that conduct charitable gambling could use their net profits for building repair and maintenance under provisions of HF555 (Kinkel, DFL-Park Rapids). The Charitable Gambling Control Board would have to approve work on any building in advance. The bill would also specify that other nonprofit or community organizations use the building extensively, and would prohibit building owners from collecting rent from such organizations. The General Legislation, Veterans Affairs and Gaming Committee's Gaming Division gave the bill preliminary approval March 30.

Automobile dealers would pay more for dealer plates if a bill the Transportation Committee considered March 29 becomes law. HF633 (Lasley, DFL-Cambridge) would increase the fee to $75 for each of the first four plates the state issues to a dealer. If the dealer wants additional plates, the cost would decrease to $40 each. The committee gave the bill preliminary approval, and referred it to the Appropriations Committee.

One-stop shopping for credit cards? It could happen if a bill the Commerce Committee approved March 28 gets a nod from the full Legislature. HF511 (O'Connor, DFL-St. Paul) would require credit card application distributors to file with the state treasurer reports having information that state law allows them to disclose. This information would include annual interest rates, grace periods, annual fees, and other information, such as consumer rebates or charitable contributions. The state treasurer's office would feed the information into a database and make it available to the public on request.

Lefse isn't good enough? Not for two koalas coming to the Minnesota Zoo, says Kathryn Roberts, director of the zoo. She says koalas only eat eucalyptus, which the zoo will bring in from Florida. Zoo officials plan to open the new exhibit on Mother's Day, May 14.

Child mortality dominated the Judiciary Committee's Criminal Justice Division March 28 and March 29. Lawmakers gave preliminary approval to HF788 (Vellenga, DFL-St. Paul), a bill that would create a state child mortality review board to study children's deaths, including those in which maltreatment was the cause or a suspected factor. The bill also would create a new crime of child endangerment. The crime may apply to people who willfully cause or permit a child to go into a situation that's likely to produce bodily harm, emotional damage, or death.

Emergency medical services (EMS) may come under the authority of the Department of Public Safety if HF428 (Solberg, DFL-Bovey) becomes law. The Department of Health currently has authority over EMS matters. The Governmental Operations approved the bill March 29.

Just look in the mirror if you want to see who's responsible for groundwater pollution, says Gunnar Isberg, Olmsted County Planning director. Isberg testified March 30 in support of HF534 (Munger, DFL-Duluth), the comprehensive groundwater protection bill, at the Environment and Natural Resources Committee. "There's a need for everyone to modify behavior and attitudes towards controlling pollutants," Isberg says. The state will face two consequences if legislators don't act now to protect groundwater—more lawsuits, and a tremendous burden for future generations.

Education Commissioner Ruth Randall ponders a question from an Education Committee member on the governor's open enrollment program, March 28.

Charitable gambling taxes may go up under a bill the Tax Laws Subcommittee heard March 28. The proposal would bring in an additional $79 million in revenue to meet the governor's budget goals, according to a Department of Revenue spokesperson. The bill would change the charitable gambling tax from a 10 percent tax on profits to a 6 percent tax on gross receipts. Most state lotteries tax 30 to 40 percent of gross earnings, say revenue officials. To pay the higher tax, charitable organizations could offer smaller prizes rather than reduce the funds they would normally receive.

Surplus soybeans could supply the ink industry's total oil need throughout the nation, reports Rep. Ted Winter (DFL-Fulda). He presented statistical information about soy-based ink production to the Economic Development Committee March 30. A survey indicates that 46 million bushels of soybeans could supply the ink industry's needs. That's only 3 percent of the national soybean surplus stock. Farmers would benefit from increased prices, and ultimately the state economy would benefit, according to Winter.

Do you know

Statues on the Capitol Mall in St. Paul honor three Minnesota governors who rose from poverty to become political leaders.

"Three years a soldier in the Civil War. Three times a member of Congress. Twice governor of Minnesota. Five times our United States Senator." These proud words describe Knute Nelson, governor of Minnesota from 1893-1895. A farmers' revolt and a three-way split helped in his 1893 election bid. He was our first governor of Norwegian birth.

"This monument is raised to his memory by one hundred thousand of his friends" is the inscription for John Albert Johnson, Minnesota's first native son to become governor (1905-1909).

Floyd B. Olson governed during the Great Depression (1931-1936). His administration started a state income tax to fund schools, 13 state forests, and temporarily prohibited mortgage foreclosure. He could possibly have become a third-party presidential candidate, but he died in office at age 45.
