

About the report

Welcome to the state's most comprehensive list of business start-ups and expansions.

Businesses exploring Minnesota for new locations routinely inquire about current economic development. By listing companies who have recently built new facilities or expanded existing ones, we verify a healthy economy in our state while supplying state and local economic development officials real evidence of business activity within Minnesota.

Our reports provide information on projects at various stages of development. Business clients, economic development organizations, contract developers, public officials and the public use the listings.

The media also use this information. These data are made available to various economic development publications, including Site Selection magazine. Each year, based on voluntary reporting, Site Selection ranks states on a number of factors relating to economic development. Minnesota's dynamic economy is consistently and favorably positioned in this high-profile annual survey, placing in many of the top-ten lists.

Information Gathering Sources: Business activity is researched using a variety of sources including metro and regional newspapers, business and real estate journals, construction company newsletters, Internet research and staff referrals. DEED and/or JOBZ Initiative involvement is not a project measure to qualify for admission into the report.

Project Eligibility: Data is gathered for many types of projects, not just those meeting Site Selection magazine's criteria, i.e., all JOBZ projects are listed for the year. Please join us in furthering our state's national recognition for economic development by letting us know of significant business activity in your area. Use the website submission forms, either the emailed online form or the Fax/Mail PDF format. Deadline for entries is mid-December; the report is posted the following January.
